

SENATE PASSES
BUDGET; HOUSE
SCANS DAVEY'SEconomy Bloc's Bill About $3,000,000 Less Than Asked by Governor.

APPROVED BY 22 TO 6

Lower Chamber's Committee Adds $250,000 to Administration Measure.By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., June 22.—A Senate committee dominated by the "no new taxes" group threw down the gauntlet of its own biennial budget bill before the house of representatives today then dawdled in a technical "five-minute recess" before voting action.

Working with ball-bearing precision, the senate approved its budget proposal 22 to 6 in a late session last night, ignoring Gov. Martin L. Davey's appropriations bill, which item by item it raised about $3,000,000 higher.

The Davey plan was being considered by the house finance committee, with its presentation expected today.

A special legislative session to set a budget before the July 1 deadline convened Monday.

Approved Without Debate

After adding $279,652 to the $155,213,000 "no new taxes" bill, the state committee rushed it to the floor. There it was approved without discussion or explanation of its contents. Additions included $100,000 for Kent State University and $100,000 for Ohio State University.

The senate committee also carried $100,000 for free textbooks in public and parochial schools in 1938. These funds always were included in the estimate, however.Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder, who managed the senate procedure and skeleton sessions were now in order until the house acted.Meanwhile, the house finance committee had added about $250,000 to the Davey-sponsored budget.The two budget bills differ considerably. In that the senate group's plan lists all expenditures, including liquor control and old age pensions.Davey's proposal does not actually budget new pensions or liquor control for all of certain income items are earmarked for these items, regardless of the actual amount these items attain.The governor's budget also leaves out $4,800,000 in highway funds $10,000 for mental disease clinics, $235,000 for the highway patrol, and $6,000 for the state employees retirement system.Separate Bills These would be included in supplemental bills to be adopted as emergency measures to as to make them effective immediately after passage.The senate bill also includes $2,657,810 for the conservation division, whereas the governor's bill appropriates to this purpose all revenues according to the division without fixing any amount.University appropriations, an issue during the past three years, showed some variance, with the governor's figures ranging slightly higher than those of the senate bill. Introduced by Sen. William R.
Foss, Democrat of Mercer.Another angle of the senate bill included curbing gubernatorial authority over departmental expenditures through the director of finance. All previous budget bills, as well as that presented for the governor today by Rep. Al Kalb, Democrat of Ottawa, permit the finance director to veto any expenditure by any executive department. The senate bill does not grant such power and also would repeal the director's right to transfer employees from one department to another.In its lineup for the special session, the senate materially altered the personnel of its rules and finance committees. With the "no new taxes" group in control ofHoldover members of the finance committee are Emerson Campbell, Democrat of Belmont; William J.
Zoll, Democrat of Cuyahoga, John F. Connolly, Democrat of Lucas, Hiram W. Baggett, Democrat of Montgomery; James A. Mathews and Democrat of Clark, and Edward Waldvogel, Democrat ofNew members are William M.
Brod, Democrat of Cuyahoga, J.
Dale Soldner, Democrat of Mahoning, William R. Foss, Democrat of Mercer; Tom L. Gallagher, Democrat of Cuyahoga, Fred L. Adams, Republican of Wood, and Lawrence A. Kane, Republican of Hamilton.The rules committee remained the same except that Harold D.
Nash, Democrat of Clermont, was added and Sen. Foss replaced W. F. Garver, Democrat ofThe committee on committees made the appointments.

GALION AGAIN HIT

Five Upper Sandusky Youths Rescued from Marooned Bridge.By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., June 22.—Central Ohio was recovering today from a freak cloudburst that caused floods approaching those of the spring of 1913 in height. The crest of the waters on the Scioto was nearing Prospect this morning but no alarm was expressed by river observers. The Whetstone in the southern part of the county was rising rapidly.

At Bucyrus, the center of the deluge which broke all rainfall records in Bucyrus history with 7.45 inches in a 10-hour period, conditions were returning to normal and the Sandusky river was expected to be of average height about 3 p. m. today.

Galion again suffered heavily last night shortly after 8 o'clock as a high wind accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain hit the city and nearby countryside. The gale tore down several trees and blocked streets for several hours.

Galon Again Hit
The home of Dr. O. R. Hackley was slightly damaged when a tree fell. Streets and homes were darkened during most of the evening as lines blew down. Crews from electric and telephone companies worked most of the night repairing lines.

Most of the roads in the vicinity of Galion, flooded yesterday, were opened by this morning.

James Hopley, official weather observer for Bucyrus, said the highest previous one-day precipitation occurred in March, 1913, when 3.45 inches fell—four inches less than the rain from 10 p. m. Sunday to 8 a. m. Monday.

Mr. Hopley said he believed there were two distinct cloudbursts, one at midnight and one about 2 p. m.

Your Health
BY DR. J. S. COPELAND

Child Who Tires
I HAVE before me an article written by a specialist in children's diseases. This authority states that fatigue is a common condition encountered in children from infancy to adolescence. He has carefully investigated this problem, having studied about 125,000 children in institutions and private practice.

He points out that it is a symptom that must never be overlooked.
Though frequent and severe fatigue is generally accepted as one of the signs of illness, it is too often overlooked. It may be due to a slight nervous disorder. But it is well known that fatigue may be one of the signs of tuberculosis, diabetes, anemia, heart disease and other disorders of childhood.

Many children suffer from excessive fatigue because they have an infection in the ear, nose or throat.
Too often a youngster harbors diseased and enlarged adenoids and tonsillar tissue. This leads to nervousness and other disturbances which ultimately result in excessive fatigue.

If a child has a deficient diet over a long period of time, he will ultimately suffer from chronic fatigue. Many children have a diet rich in carbohydrates and deficient in protein. This, plus poor meal habits, indigestion, loss of weight and constipation are common factors in the production of fatigue.

The specialist I have mentioned also pointed out that many children, even though free from disease, seem always to be tired. In that event, it is undoubtedly due to lack of rest. The child who is unusually energetic and active often fails to obtain the necessary number of hours of sleep and relaxation.

Rest is essential to the welfare of every growing child. The amount of sleep must be determined by the age of the child.
It depends, too, on the amount of school work as well as his social activities. Many children are exposed to too much excitement, without getting the necessary amount of rest and relaxation.
Without long periods of sleep and quiet, they cannot be well and hearty.

The importance of avoiding fatigue cannot be overstated. Neglect of the warning sign may lead to serious impairment of health in later life. It is the forerunner of many chronic disorders of adult life.

The Principle of Liberty.

Some things can be learned better by experiencing them than by hearing about them.

All Americans have been hearing a great deal about the right to strike. It has become almost a fundamental of liberty.

There is likely to be a difference between hearing about the right to strike and experiencing what happens when that right is exercised.

For it usually takes experience to prove that there are two sides to the question as there are to all questions.

If the right to strike is one of the fundamental liberties of Americans, then the right not to strike is the negative side of the same liberty.

The non-striker has just as many rights to protect as the striker. It is the attempt to protect those rights equitably and fairly in the case of the attempt which is responsible for most of the tension in strike areas.

The situation is a reminder that the principle of liberty isn't worth much if it is applied to the exclusion of the other fellow. Either liberty must be guaranteed to all or it can be guaranteed to none.

Stole the Show.

The first seven individuals placed in the pillars by the treasury department for not paying taxes till they hurt were Jules S. Bach, Philip De Ronde, Wallace Greene, Jacob Schick, Percy K. Hudson, Laughton and George Wellinghouse Jr.

With the exception of Mr. Laughton whose fine performance in Buggles of Red Gap gave the screen one of its funniest pictures, the lot isn't exciting—not the kind of thing to open up a conversation with. What the allegedly immoral taxpayers did isn't exciting, either. They merely paid no more than they were supposed to pay.

It happened that while their names and acts were being discussed, something more exciting was going on over in the Senate chamber. Sen. Joseph T. Robinson was on his feet. He was angry. You may laugh about a $36,000,000 debt hanging over the treasury of the United States if you wish to, but with all my refined and expanded sense of humor, I find it impossible to laugh about such a thing, he roared.

He was trying to cool down the WPA spending spree at the time by requiring local communities to put up 25 per cent of the money. As such things happen he got hot under the collar and maybe forgot for an instant that President Roosevelt doesn't want any rigid requirements placed on WPA allotments. Maybe he forgot he was majority leader too.

Between what Sen. Robinson was talking about—a heavy national debt which is still growing—and the fact that American tax payers aren't paying any more than they have to, there possibly is a close relation.

Sir James Was the Ninth.

Sir James Barrie was born in 1860 ninth of his parents' children. He survived that hand cap—and surmounted it—to become one of the world's most honored men and wealthy besides.

He was a writer but a special kind of writer. He had something out of the ordinary to sell, which may be described as an anecdote about him and his mother, who had a great influence over him.

She was a laughing woman. One day when she wasn't laughing James was seven years old and stood on his head in the bed trying to amuse her. Are you laughing now, are you laughing?" he cried, anxious to please her. Perhaps she did smile a little, but she didn't tell James about the ache in her heart because one of his brother's had died.

In 1931 a biographer, C. Patrik Thompson, wrote of Barrie: "The world of grown-up men and women has been in effect his perpetual mother, and he has never given up his bosom task of standing anxiously on his head in his bed to try to cure the pain at his mother's heart and make her smile again."

It is interesting to read about Barrie at this particular time. He had retired many years before his death. He admitted he had lost touch with the different kind of world that followed the World War, a world which didn't try very hard to understand Peter Pan for instance.

There was boundless ambition in Barrie but no muscle much to sin, but little noise in saying it, strong convictions but no ruthless will to cram them down anyone's throat, a great love for humankind but no pretense of loving men who were unlovable.

A Message To Graduates

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Walter Lippman's column today contains the text of his "Message" yesterday before the graduating class of Smith University at Northampton, Mass.

I have been to Northampton several times in my life the first time so long ago that I can now safely confess that I did not come to deliver a lecture on politics or to see the excellent scenery which I was then too preoccupied to notice. That was so long ago that President Mellon was still a mere professor of English literature in Harvard college and the world outside had not yet gone quite so mad as to my complete amazement. It went mad shortly after that. But even in that much quieter and simpler age I can remember that I was a trifling rascal when I reached Northampton.

Today I am nervous again because I am so deeply impressed with the solemnity of my role on this occasion. For it has occurred to me that I am delivering the very last lecture that many of you will ever be compelled to listen to and that henceforth when you are citizens of a free country you will listen only to those who wish to hear that from now on you will read only what you wish to read.

I wish I could add that no one will ever again ask you to take another examination. But I can't say that. It would not be true. For out there, waiting for you at the gates of the college, you will find all kinds of self-appointed examiners who will insist on knowing whether you think the right thoughts and are prepared to think at once on the right side of all public questions. If by any chance some of you are a bit uncertain about what are the right thoughts and what is the right side of all questions you will not have to do much research or to rack your brains unduly. The self-appointed examiners will tell you. The right thoughts you will be told are their thoughts. The right side in their side. All other thoughts except their thoughts are bad thoughts and the other side consists either of conspirators against the Republic or of heretics bent on grinding the faces of the poor.

Just at this moment, particularly the world outside there is a warning with exiled people who already know the whole truth about every thing that matters. When they talk one might well wonder whether it is necessary to go on with the trouble and expense of maintaining colleges and universities where scholars laboring under a quid pro quo that they do not know the whole truth still continue to search for the truth. There is not a single problem which these self-appointed people have not solved so completely but that they feel called upon to denounce and if possible to destroy any one who does not agree with them. The active world of public affairs is dominated by them, they are indeed wonderful. For they have understood and mastered every economic, political, psychological and moral problem that has puzzled civilization men for 2,000 years.

Proof Will Be Required.

Now that you have been to college they will expect you to prove that you have received an education. All you have to do is to enter under their banners and agree with them enthusiastically. They will not expect you to think. They will expect you to line up with them.

I assure you that I am not exaggerating very much the degree to which the active contenders for power in the modern world assume their own infallibility and demand conformity from others. In half a dozen supposedly civilized countries you go to jail if you can not conceal your opinions with the required hypocrisy. It has not come to that in this country. But it has come to the point where in many states a teacher has to swear that he won't teach any thing that a legislator who never learned anything might find it difficult to understand. It has come to the point where you are probably in the pay of Nazis or you believe in organized labor and are almost certainly dodging your taxes if you do not wish to pick the supreme court. It has come to the point where you are a royalist if you do not agree with the party in power and a sif if you do.

He was trying to cool down the WPA spending spree at the time by requiring local communities to put up 25 per cent of the money. As such things happen he got hot under the collar and maybe forgot for an instant that President Roosevelt doesn't want any rigid requirements placed on WPA allotments. The Pennsylvania Shutdown Order

MAN RIGHTS ABOVE PROPERTY RIGHTS. This was the slogan on which the Roosevelt administration reached the height of its popularity in the first four years. Today the slogan of the new deal has been altered by the governor of Pennsylvania, the would be successor of Mr. Roosevelt to read political rights above human rights and property rights.

Now if you have built up an immunity against the illusion that you know the whole truth and are moved by a lust for resistance against those who think that already they know the whole truth. If you have the capacity to see the beam in your own eye before you point out the mole in your neighbor's eye, you may go out into the world with a good conscience and with the assurance that you are not likely to make it a more muddled place than it already is. But if your ambition is to do a little better than that and in your time to make the world a some what more decent place to live in, then the best advice I can give you is that which the oracle at Delphi gave to Cicero when he asked her not to should attain the most glory.

He would attain it she said by risking his own genius and not the opinion of the people the guide of his life. You will see that the advice of the oracle was not easy advice. In fact it was exceedingly dangerous and difficult advice to follow. But nevertheless it was true advice. For, if the opinion of the people is to rise above the prejudices of the moment and the ignorance which is our natural and universal condition, it must be continually corrected, informed and enlightened by the opinions of individuals who stand on their own feet and see with their own eyes. The mass of men must be leavened by individuals who are self moving who do not habitually conform who question not only the conclusion but the premises and the character of the evidence who raise disturbing doubts who imagine unexpected theories who are not easily impressed who are not easily overawed do not automatically follow the fashion in ideas are not afraid to be wrong and do not become pinheads if they are alone.

No doubt this is a recipe for producing a large number of cranks and fools. But they must be enduring for the sake of the indispensable few who as Montaigne put it dare to break the wave and do not roll in with the tide. No doubt it is true that most people cannot go anywhere unless they can ride on a bandwagon. But some have to swear to the various bandwagons on which the crowds are riding or there will be a terrible collision and they will all land in the ditch. Now I take it that the oracle at Delphi was talking about these indispensable individuals and that she was telling Cicero, that he must keep his eyes on the road and his mind on the place where the road leads and steer accordingly, rather than to go where the back seat drivers think they want to go.

Worker Without Redress.

What redress has the citizen who wants to work? Governor Earle and the commonwealth of Pennsylvania could be made defendants in suits for civil damages. Nobody has a right, even under the color of martial law, to deprive a man from working or from shutting down his plant and allowing others to remain open. If the order closed all industrial and business operations without discrimination there might have been a defense, especially if conditions of anarchy existed and no civil course could be pursued to maintain order.

But the evidence showed that the mayor of the city asked for state aid merely to preserve order and was given instead a declaration of martial law which in effect takes away the right of the strikers and materially assists them in applying pressure to the employers.

The right to work has hitherto been regarded as the most sacred of human rights. The right to be protected as one works is one of the fundamental guarantees of the Constitution, the so-called privileges and immunities of citizenship itself. These rights are guaranteed not only by the constitutions of the several states.

Now Governor Earle in an unprecedented action has boldly suspended not only the guarantees of a state constitution but of the federal constitution as well. In this he is supposed to have the sympathetic approval of the Roosevelt regime but it would not be surprising if conditions of anarchy existed and no civil course could be pursued to maintain order.

But the evidence showed that the mayor of the city asked for state aid merely to preserve order and was given instead a declaration of martial law which in effect takes away the right of the strikers and materially assists them in applying pressure to the employers.

Harry Wills, the colored sign er, who often could not find men brave enough to fight him, has almost passed from the headlines save for the 30 day fast which he continues to indulge every year.

At 45 he is still in superb physical form and is one of the better liked members of his race in Harlem. His people believe he would easily have been champion if his challenges had not been many times ignored. He dresses quietly and has a "modest" income, carefully saved from his singing endeavors.

His chief companion is Bill Robinson and Cab Calloway.

Ward Woodrow is one of the town's theatrical chroniclers who manages now and then to turn out an acceptable play. Several have had sizable runs and been successfully filmed. A Southerner from Savannah, Morehouse was a schoolmate of William Hopkings, the actress whom he often quotes to first nights and after theatre affairs. He has a puckish twinkle in a real Georgian drawl and gets more fun out of newspapering than almost anyone in the current giddap.

No one knows the way of the sudden cane evanescence. Five years ago the walking stick was an important article of dress. It was a cane that the well dressed man had three kinds—for morning, afternoon and evening. There were at least 20 shops about town devoted only to the sale of them. Most have closed. There wasn't an actor who would think of walking the Rialto without swinging a stick. Today a bell hop at the Lambs could not recall but three performers who were carrying them.

The most noticeable touch to the care fanning was during the Easter Parade when a photographer counted only eight from 10 o'clock a.m. to 1 p.m. However this is not the first time there has been a sudden stop to canes. It happened in the early 1900's and lasted a year and regained the lost popularity with a greater fury than ever. Caruso is reputed to have revived it.

Sardi's, a midtown luncheonette frequented largely by people of the theater press agents and sundry types usual to Broadway. Its main decor consists of panels of caricatures of the great who swang along in the incessant parade. After the passing of several years it is interesting to see what happens to a number of those limited. Some in total eclipse. A few disgraced and others whose names sparkled in lights over theater marquees now playing small bits in Hollywood or haunting the agencies. The most elaborate of the glorification of celebrities is in the Raleigh room of the Warwick down by Dean Cornwell. This was a carefully executed mural masterpiece, and a triumph to the symbolism of the modern masters.

not know of any case where employers have had serious trouble in which there was not something wrong in their treatment of, or in their attitude toward their employees. And if you look at the other side of the picture, at the troubles within the labor movement which divide it so much and are so threatening, you will find I believe, that they arise from the collision between an old, established, and self-satisfied bureaucracy within the labor unions and a mass of inexperienced, unseasoned men who are not used to responsibility because they have never exercised it.

These are the reasons why the best service any one can do to his own party, to his own cause, to his own institutions, is to芒told, to be bold and tell the truth about them. It should not be the rule that only women tell the truth about women, much less that women tell the truth only about women. Bankers ought to tell the truth about bankers long before a senate investigating committee goes to work. Employers ought to tell the truth about employment long before they hear the complaints of the labor organizers. College presidents ought to tell the truth about colleges, and even newspapermen ought to tell the truth about the newspapers.

Required Courage

The capacity to tell the kind of truth is said to require courage. But the courage will be there in any one who has learned detachment from the immediate pressures of his environment, from the immediate opinion of the people, from the immediate requirements of his ambition, from his immediate subversion to power, to fame, to comfort, to security, and to ease—has learned

Current Conflict

This rule is, I think, particularly pertinent in the current conflicts between labor and capital. I do detachment from these things and to discount them at their true value, and one acquired, what only education can give him, the ability to live in the larger environment of the human mind.

Here you have lived at least within sight of that larger environment, and after you leave you will be confronted all your lives with the question whether you will dwell within it or shrink into the little world of struggle for immediate ends and of conformity to immediate opinions. It is not certain at all that you will be happier in that larger environment. You may not, for it is difficult and dangerous, and often lonely unless you are one of the lucky ones who finds a companion who will dwell there with you. But at least you will not have spent your life in a rocking chair gazing at the mountains you do not dare to climb. If you have pain, it will not be boredom; if you grow weary at last, it will be because you have spent yourself well.

FLOOD CAUSES AUTO CLUB EXTRA WORK

The office staff of the Marion Auto club on East Center street was swamped with work Monday. One cause was a deluge of requests for information on roads, due to the Sunday night torrential rain. Second cause was a rush of applicants for driving licenses, following examinations given yesterday by state highway patrolmen at the police station.

M. E. Baldwin, club secretary, said about 30 persons applied for licenses yesterday. They were pre-sons who had not had a year's driving experience or who were under 18 years of age, but had just passed the drivers' test. The tests are given the third Monday of each month.

FIREMEN'S PENSION APPEAL HEARING SET

Uline Case, Along with Police Test Case, To Be Heard in Lima July 7.

The suit of Hilbert D. Uline, retired fire chief, to test the legality of city council's abolition of the firemen's pension system will be heard July 7 by the Third district court of appeals at Lima, the same date set for hearing of the companion suit of former Police Chief James W. Thompson.

Notification of the hearing in the Uline case was received by his attorney, Grant E. Mouser Jr., yesterday.

Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young recently ruled that the city has a right to repeal whatever legislation it might pass, thus upholding the legality of the abolition of the pension system in 1936. A similar decision was made in the Thompson case.

In both actions injunctions are sought to restrain the city from transferring pension funds to other funds. Temporary injunctions granted when the suits were filed have been dissolved by common plea court, but an agreement has been reached whereby the city will not touch the pension funds.

The pension systems were abolished in February of 1936 by council and the suits were filed later the same year. The appeal is on questions of law. William P. Moloney is attorney for Thompson.

NAZIS ASK POWERS TO CHASTISE SPAIN

Demand Retaliation as Result of Torpedo Attack on German Warship.

By The Associated Press
Germany demanded today that Great Britain, France and Italy join her in retaliation against the Spanish central government for an alleged attempt to torpedo the German cruiser Leipzig off Algeciras last week.

The inspired German press pointed to cancellation of its foreign minister's intended London visit as evidence of Berlin's serious view. The German attitude appeared to be that the non-intervention committee must make good on its recent agreement making attacks on the International neutrality fleet "the common concern" of all.

In London, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain after meeting with the German, French and Italian ambassadors until late last night.

A report spread through London political circles that Germany had issued a "virtual" ultimatum demanding Algeciras' punishment against the Spanish government. Official German declarations that "the guilty pirates" must be deprived of the means of further attack led to speculation that the third Reich contemplated independent action unless the central Spanish administration was ordered to hand over all its submarines.

Eighteen insurgent planes, the second squadron, within a week, scouted Madrid meanwhile in apparent preparation for a new offensive against the besieged city.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's northern forces reported now conquests in the Basque country as they pushed westward toward Santander from conquered Bilbao.

Basque leaders, however, declared their retreating troops had entrenched themselves on the left bank of the Ebro river and were holding milking and industrial zones close to Bilbao.

LONDON, June 22—Great Britain will refuse to join any naval demonstration off the coast of Spain as a German-sought "warning" to the Spanish government, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today.

His announcement followed swiftly upon an excited report that Germany, demanding punishment of the Spanish republic, requires for what the third Reich contends was a torpedo attack on her cruiser Leipzig, had presented France and Britain with a virtual ultimatum for a stringent action—perhaps a four-power naval display of warning near Valencia.

REGULAR POLAR HOPS SEEN IN FEW YEARS

Soviet Pilot Optimistic About Future Trade Route
Via Arctic.

By The Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, June 22—Transpolar flights will be regular occurrences in one or two years—maybe three, says the man who piloted Soviet Russia's plane on its 5,300-mile flight from Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., last weekend.

"A return flight would be easier because we would have tail winds," said Pilot Valerio Chkaloff.

"With 'contemporary' technique and science, we think there will be regular flights over the north pole in one or two years—maybe three," Chkaloff, and his two companions, welcomed by 5,000 persons who thronged Oakland airport last evening, said they next wanted to try a Moscow-New York flight via the polar regions.

Today, they looked forward to viewing the country in which they landed Sunday after an epic, 64-hour flight from the Soviet capital.

They expressed particular desire for an introduction to American industrial technique and to visit San Francisco, Chicago and New York.

The big, single-motored monoplane in which Chkaloff, co-pilot George Baluboff and navigator Alexander Relyakoff spanned the Arctic, will be dismantled at Vancouver and shipped to Russia.

STRIKE ZONE KEPT QUIET BY TROOPS

A number of compromises would each side send a letter to Governor Davey agreeing to terms of employment for the workers? Would the officers of the company and the union sign an agreement as individuals? These and other questions will be put to each side in future conferences.

Meanwhile, the militiamen, deployed along a 25-mile front to end a night of fear and forecast, a night of fear and forecast, John L. Lewis had called "contemplated butchery" at the scheduled reopening of four steel mills in defiance of Lewis' steel union.

Good humor and song replaced the rumblings that had threatened to break into clashes between adherents of Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and the rank-and-file workers.

Steel Plants Closed

"Every now, you mugs," a national guard officer admonished the strikers. "We're not here to break the picket lines. We're here to see to it that nobody goes to work."

"We'll have a signed contract in our pockets before the first of next week," Charles Engan, a district leader, told 500 cheering CIO men.

Sheriff's deputies halted at the outskirts of Youngstown 100 motor cars bearing 2,000 men from Akron, where Lewis' rubber union is strongly organized. Civil authorities arrested 113 persons.

Children clapped their hands as the national guardsmen leaped from their trucks, which had sped at 50 miles an hour from all parts of Ohio. To the children of steel workers it was a holiday; to their fathers it was grim business, another day in the four-week old strike that has made more than 30,000 men idle along the banks of the Mahoning river.

Act to Avert Clash

Police moved swiftly to avert a clash between 200 back-to-work volunteers and CIO pickets at the Bifer hill plant of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

Three thousand spectators watched as police sent home the anti-strikers, who arrived with their lunch pails.

"There isn't going to be any work," a police captain shouted. "The mills are staying closed. Go home!"

Grumbling, the men departed in Warren, 14 miles from Youngstown, pickets threw down their clubs and went home all but a few of their number after Sheriff Roy Hardman told them the guardsmen were coming. In front of Republic Steel's plant they kept the number of pickets allowed by the court yesterday which enjoined their activities.

Reopening of the four Youngstown mills, employing about 20,000 men, had been set for 7 a.m. Exactly 10 minutes before that time the first contingent of national guardsmen rolled up to the Campbell plant of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

The troopers, 20 men and four officers, climbed stiffly out of two olive-drab trucks.

Army Brings Help

The military was here, and a forlorn night of apprehension over possible bloodshed gave way to obvious relief.

The first detail was from the 135th artillery, Youngstown.

Other units of the 4,800 national guardsmen ordered into the strike-sieged Mahoning valley region by Gov. Martin L. Davey were delayed by floods in central Ohio.

The night passed without a single recorded instance of violence.

A total of 113 arrests, mostly held on suspicion or for carrying concealed weapons, was announced by sheriff forces and police at 4:45 a.m.

The weird assembly of weapons confiscated included home-made dynamite bombs, black pepper, baseball bats, blackjacks, an Indian club, gas pipe, hat pins, pistols, army rifles dating back to the World war days, and a razor-sharp knife.

One official estimated enough gas-pipe was seized to outfit a six-room house.

Watch Nervous Center

Thousands of curious spectators, blithely chirping, "when does the party start?" clung around the likelihood trouble centers.

They sang "That Old Gal of Mine," "Down by the Old Mill Stream," and other barbershop selections. Some brought picnics, prepared to make a day of it.

"Flying squads" roved the strike front bearing instructions from John Owens, Ohio CIO director, instructing pickets to disband their lines.

Owens ordered them to go home.

"I first ordered them to reduce the line to normal, but then ordered them to disband completely when I heard about the big crowds gathering along the line. I was afraid there might be a spontaneous outbreak," he said.

Despite Owens' order, many pickets remained, although well back from the picket lines.

The greatest concentration was at the Stop 5 plant of Republic Steel, the scene of Saturday night's battle in which two strikers were killed and 26 persons wounded.

Major General Gilson D. Light, in command, emphasized the troops were only to assist the civil authorities.

"We have no martial law in Ohio," he said. "We will assist the sheriffs of the two counties to carry out the governor's orders."

The tension reigning since Saturday night's fierce clash was visibly dissipated.

Good Humor Apparent

On the whole, a rough good humor took its place. On Bifer hill, where a handful of maintenance men have been inside for 27 days, pickets jeered at the white faces in the plant windows. Outside the Bifer hill plant, Hugh Carella, a CIO organizer, mounted an upturned bucket and told the strikers:

"This thing is now in the hands

BLUM ASKS PARTY TO JOIN CABINET

By The Associated Press
PARIS, June 22—Leon Blum urged the Socialist party today to participate in the cabinet that Camille Chautemps is trying to form as a second people's front government.

"We cannot refuse to participate in a people's front government headed by a Radical Socialist," the former premier advised his followers at a party council. "We must preserve the people's front majority."

French embassy officials at Washington said Georges Bonnet, ambassador to Washington, had accepted an offer of the finance ministry in the projected new government of premier-designate Chautemps. He will sail for Paris from New York tomorrow.

FOUR OHIO MINERS DIE OF BLAST BURNS

Two Companions Expected To Perish; Light in Powder
Keg Causes Explosion.

By The Associated Press
GALLIPOLIS, O., June 22—Four miners, burned by a powder explosion in Jackson county coal pit, died today in a hospital here and physicians held little hope of saving the lives of their two companions.

The dead were listed as Edward and Theodore Rupert, brothers; Keri Harris and George Cadd. Death attaches described as "just fair" the condition of Daniel Rupert and Thomas Godfrey and gave them small chance to survive.

The six were alone yesterday in the mine when the blast rocked the mine when the blast rocked the creek running over the road, and Mr. Klingel started to Cardington on horseback. The horse, picking its way through about six feet of water over the culvert, stumbled and was thrown into the creek bed.

One of the severely burned men gasped out the story of the blast at the Keyston mine, 12 miles southeast of Jackson. He said that as they were eating lunch a miner's lighted headgear exploded.

Immediately the men were enveloped in flames. Their clothing was extinguished by Cecil Arthur and Lamar Gray of Wellston, who were waiting for coal at the mouth of the mine.

William Perkins, veterinarian, gave first aid before the men were brought the 20 miles here.

Act to Keep Peace

Gov. Davey, who only last week brought strike and company leaders together in a second futile attempt to bring them to an accord, explained in a statement that he was sending the troops into the strike children "to prevent riot, bloodshed and possible loss of life."

His order specified:

Steel plants now operating shall continue to operate "on the same basis as they have been during the strike."

Steel plants which have closed during the strike shall remain closed.

All persons not officers shall be dismissed.

There shall be no invasion of the two affected counties by non-residents.

In a proclamation he said that the laws of the state are being violated.

Minor riots have occurred "and a most serious riot is threatened."

The "peace, comfort and safety of the citizens are in grave jeopardy."

Official Information indicates that the local police officers will be wholly unable to cope with the situation."

Brigade Leader

Opens Headquarters

By The Associated Press
WARREN, O., June 22—Briege General Ludwig Connally, 73rd brigade commander, set up headquarters in the armory today to direct movements of 4,800 Ohio national guardsmen ordered into the strike-sieged Mahoning valley region by Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The night passed without a single recorded instance of violence.

Sheep floated down the river, Waldo at frequent intervals, residents said. The rise in the river, which was not much above normal yesterday, came suddenly during the night.

To get to Marion today Cardington residents detoured through Mt. Gilead. Old residents of the community gaped as they watched flood conditions which they said surpassed anything in the 1913 flood.

Mrs. Mary Dennis of Cardington left town this morning and arrived in Marion 15 miles away, an hour and a half later. At the Half-Way bridge on the Marion-Cardington road, about seven miles west of Cardington, the water was pouring over the bridge in waves a foot and a half high at 10 a.m. today. Cutting across country was impossible because every creek and stream was swollen hundreds of feet out of its banks and virtually every side road was impassable at some points.

Swims for Life

Albert Klingel, township trustee living a mile west of Cardington, swam for his life yesterday and nearly lost a horse in crossing a small culvert over a creek originally used as a wading pool by small children of the community. The creek bed is between banks approximately eight feet high.

To get to town by automobile was out of the question with the creek running over the road, and Mr. Klingel started to Cardington on horseback. The horse, picking its way through about six feet of water over the culvert, stumbled and was thrown into the creek bed.

GEORGIA TO END ITS CHAIN GANG

State Built Prison Farm To Take Place of Old-Fash. Convict Camp.

The Associated Press
ATLANTA, Ga., June 22.—Georgia moved today to revamp its public chain gang system, a program which condemned many of its old-fashioned convict camps out of business.

State officials formally closed a deal with the federal government to take over July 1 a modern prison farm built by the PWA in Marion county and legislative commissioners planned a survey to general reorganization of the penal setup.

Escapes Frequent
Under the present system, the state prison commission uses the state prison farm at Millidgeville merely as a clearing house to take care of prisoners until they are assigned to one of the numerous county convict camps in the state.

The majority are used on road and similar projects. Escapes have been frequent along with conditions at some.

It was from such a camp that Edward Elliott Burns, convicted on a bank robbery charge, escaped and wrote his book "I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang." Burns was attracted wide attention and the governor of New Jersey, where he sought refuge, refused to return him to Georgia.

New Plant Escape Proof
The new prison plant in south Georgia is considered virtually escape-proof. It cost $1,503,125.

Under the plan that legislative commissioners are studying, all state prisoners and "bad actors" will be sent there for industrial training.

The state highway department will use most of the minor offenders, prisoners, maintaining centers.

Human Lee Purdon of the state penitentiary committee said yesterday on the program with him official will start at once. He explained the state highway department roads program, in which use of federal funds eliminated labor will do away with about two-thirds of this type of work for prisoners.

Purdon said that from what he learned of the penal system "a wide reform" is needed.

LAKE SHIPPING NEARS NEW RECORD

International News Service
CLEVELAND.—In view of the record amount of iron and coal which has been moved on the Great Lakes thus far this season, it appears likely that the total tonnage will top that of the peak season of 1929.

At the end of that season when it was recorded that 60,000,000 tons of ore had been shipped, it was believed by many veteran observers of navigation affairs on the world's greatest inland waterway that the record would never be equaled.

Although estimates for the present season anticipated a movement of approximately 60,000,000 tons of ore, it is already apparent that this figure may be well surpassed. As of June 1 there had been 13,814,411 gross tons of ore shipped in comparison to 5,069,180 tons for the same period of last year. This is an increase of about 160 per cent, an amazing advance regardless of the general improvement in most industrial fields.

The extent of this improvement is evidenced in another way when it is considered that only 44,822,023 gross tons of ore were carried by Great Lakes shippers during the entire 1935 season. In other words, the total thus far, with the season yet to reach its peak, is already better than a third of the tonnage moved last year.

A corresponding improvement is recorded in coal shipments for the season. There have been 12,561,403 tons of cargo coal carried as of June 1, latest available figures from the Great Lakes Ore & Coal Exchange. This total compares most favorably to that of 9,183,474 tons for the same period last year.

All available boats have been pressed into service as a result of the heavy demand for carriers.

Numerous freighters which have been out of service for several years have been laid up because there was not sufficient shipping activity to justify their commutation—are now under steam again. In addition several new boats are being constructed.

The tonnage moved on the Great Lakes is not important to shipping interests alone. It is doubly significant because it serves as indication of the general level of industry—in other words, as an economic barometer. So many industrialists and many wage-earners are intimately bound up with the Great Lakes shipping industry that prosperity in this line represents a general improvement throughout the "American Ruhr."

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Rushes Ahead To Prepare Boys for Guests.

SQUEEZE INTO the front seat with me, birdies," big Harry Underwood admonished his beloved stepdaughter and her "roomie" both of them giggling delightedly over his saloon. "I see by the signs that your forebears on the staff side are preparing to go into a committee of the whole to settle the proper continuance of the universe. And, woe betide anybody who interrupts them! I'll let you talk to me if you're good little girls and put your spoons in your saucers properly."

I am designated so often as "Auntie Madge" that I think Harry Underwood himself forgets there is no tie of kinship between Lillian's winsome daughter and myself. But he knows, as does everyone else in the family, that no neice of my own blood could be more dearly loved than this girl whose growth from childhood to exquisite young womanhood has been such a delight to us all.

"Don't spring any more cracks for a minute or two, Uncle Harry," Carolyn said as she and Marion obediently climbed into the front seat beside him. "You're simply devastating to the laughter muscles."

"Watch her lay it on," Lillian muttered to me from the side of her mouth, the communication which she learned and later taught me during our government service during the World war.

"Anything from nine to ninety is fair game for her, and isn't she the cunning trick, though? Harry ought to be preening himself, but he's hard-baked."

"You should say 'visibles,'" Mr. Underwood was assuring Carolyn gravely. "It adds eclat to your speeches for your current drags. I, me, I've been kidded by experts. I can't even blush at a compliment any more. Ah, there, Lady Fair, which way do we turn? That twin brother of Methuselah at the antique shop gave me so many directions that they've jelled into a solid mass."

"I dashed up to them breathless," "Boys," I gasped. "The Underwoods, with Marion and Carolyn, are just coming into camp. I thought you might like to get dressed."

At my first mention of the name "Underwood," they leaped to their feet and gathered up their fishing equipment. Before I had finished speaking, they were going through the doorway of the camp.

"Thanks a lot," Bill threw back over his shoulder. "Please don't let them know we're here until we can get dressed."

Ford May Gain Legendary Position Rockefeller Held

(Editor's note)—John D. Rockefeller, long an almost legendary symbol in American life, is dead. Who will replace him? The answers are given in a series of two articles, of which this is the first.

BY R. H. HIPPOLIEUSER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, June 21.—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., long America's wealthiest man, was a living, yet legendary, symbol of success and power in American industrial and commercial life.

The modern day insists on living legends, and symbols; and it will find someone to fill the place left by Rockefeller's death. Who will it be? J. P. Morgan or Andrew W. Mellon? Or will it be Henry Ford?

The chances are that it will be Henry Ford.

There are contrasts, sharp ones, in the careers of Rockefeller and Ford, but there are many similarities. In their environment of birth, their way of living, and in not a few of their views, there are parallels.

Morgan and Mellon were born into wealth. Their boyhood was spent in a metropolitan atmosphere of luxury and affluence.

Rockefeller and Ford came from the farm and village. Their surroundings were modest, their boyhood the same as that of millions of other youths. They typify the American tradition of the country boy who amassed wealth and power.

Ford lives as Rockefeller lived, quietly, simply, with no liking for society of the grand manner. Rockefeller was abstemious, a prohibitionist, plodding.

Their genius carried them to positions of incalculable influence, but it was genius of a different sort. Ford, a dreamer with an inventive mind, envisioned automatic development without realizing the vastness of its financial possibilities. Rockefeller had a financial bent to his mind, instead of inventive. He was the first to grasp the possibilities of great wealth in oil.

Regardless of their methods, which have been praised and maligned, Rockefeller was a genius of mass capitalization and Ford is a genius of mass production.

Rockefeller mobilized capital to an undreamed-of extent and organized the largest and most powerful trust the world has ever known. The development of vast corporate structures bought in the present era of mass production.

And Ford is the living symbol of this era.

Rockefeller controlled the Standard Oil trust for years, but the holdings of capital stock were widely diffused, and have become increasingly more so in recent years. The family now does not have anything approaching majority holding of stock in any of the Standard companies. Rockefeller early branched out into finance and became a powerful factor in Wall Street.

Now Is Time To Serve Refreshing Iced Tea

Dear Friends in Marion: "You told us all about making coffee. Now what about tea and the iced tea season?" asks one regular reader of the weekly column.

True enough, the iced tea season is upon us, and what is more refreshing than a tall glass of this beverage, served with lemon, cherries or mint leaves. The mechanical refrigerator, with its unlimited supply of ice cubes, comes into its own during the summer, when cold drinks are a happy sight after a weary day.

One of the most important rules for coffee-making, freshly boiled water, is a stern necessity for good tea. A hot teapot is another "must." Tea must neither stand a long period, nor boil.

Fill a china or earthen teapot with boiling water and let stand until thoroughly heated. Pour out the water. For each cup, measure into the pot one-half to one teaspoon tea and one-half cup freshly boiling water. Individual taste and the quality of the tea must determine the quantity used.

Let stand, covered, in a warm place for three to five minutes. Strain and dilute with boiling water to taste. Use fresh tea leaves for each steeping. Never wash over leaves of left-over tea. Much tannin is extracted by this method.

Tea is not a substitute for food, although its stimulating effect is immediate. The stimulating property is due to the alkaloid, theine, together with an essential oil. Analysts have proved that tea is rich in protein. Nutritive, however, is gained only through the sugar and cream served with it.

Prefer China Tea

Tea epicures prefer to serve China tea clear, with no additions to disguise the delicate flavor of the tea.

For afternoon tea, there are interesting variations, such as Maraschino cherries, thin slices of lemon and orange, stuck with two or three cloves each, sugar in blocks or fancy shapes, or rock candy.

As for iced tea, quick chilling results in clearer product and a finer flavor. Make the tea extra strong and strain the hot tea directly into glasses one-third full of cracked ice, or over blocks of ice in tall pitcher.

Strained lemon juice is even more delectable to serve than lemon slices, or try a mixture of orange and lemon juice, garnishing with both lemon and orange slices. Fresh mint leaves are popular addition.

The modern icebox offers an inexpensive and swift method of decorating iced tea, fruit drinks and punches with garnished ice cubes. Put in each compartment of the refrigerator pan a Maraschino cherry, a candied cherry, one or two mint leaves, or one-fourth slice of lemon. Attractive candied flowers, or even a bit of preserved ginger may be used, or combine two or three of these garnishes. Fill pan with water and freeze. Green cherries and a bit of lemon are a good suggestion. In the cubes with mint drinks.

For a large fruit, or ice punch, remove dividers and fill entire refrigerator pan with water. When nearly frozen, decorate with a wreath of candied fruit and mint leaves, or flowers. Add enough water to hold the decorations in place and freeze.

Different fruit juices may be combined with gingerale and hot strong tea to yield a delectable tea punch for that special warm weather party. This recipe may solve some of the problems of July Fourth entertainment.

Ten Punch

One cup sugar, one cup hot tea infusion, three-fourths cup orange juice, one-third cup lemon juice, one pint gingerale, one pint strained water, few sliced orange, Lemon slices if desired.

The Ten Infusion is made by using two teaspoons of tea to one cup boiling water. Pour the tea over the sugar and add the fruit juices as soon as the sugar is dissolved. Strain into punch bowl over a large piece of ice. Just before serving, add gingerale, strained water and slices of orange.

Grapefruit has its own refreshing quality and forms the basis for many cool punches. The simplest drink combines one quart of grapefruit and one quart of gingerale, poured over crushed ice.

One part grapefruit juice to two parts gingerale also forms a hot weather drink, served in tall glasses with crushed ice and sprigs of mint.

If fruit punches are not popular in your family, try serving iced coffee in tall glasses, and allow two tablespoons of vanilla ice-cream to each glass. Ice-cream is delicious.

One part orange juice to two parts gingerale is a delicious addition. The filling using one whole egg, may be baked between two crusts. Before putting on top crust, sprinkle with one-half cup seeded raisins.

Funeral Rites Held

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p.m. for Mrs. May Bowley, 63, inmate at the Union county home for several years, who died at the institution Sunday at 3 p.m. of a broken hip after three months' illness. One brother, Charles Smith of Prospect, survives. Burial will be made in the Mt. Vernon cemetery.

Bomber Picked To Take Braddock's Crown Tonight

GATE OF $750,000 SEEN FOR BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

First Time in Ring History a Challenger Is Favored
To Win.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, June 22—Joe Louis, sleepy-eyed son of an Alabama cotton picker, gets his greatest opportunity tonight.

In a flood-lighted ring, pitched over second base at Comiskey Park, home of the Chicago White Sox, Louis, the modern ring's most spectacular figure, battles James J. Braddock, untitled heavyweight champion of the world. Watching them will be a crowd that may go as high as 60,000, with gate receipts that may reach $750,000.

It will be the first time that a Negro has had the opportunity of winning the world heavyweight championship since Jack Johnson battered the shell of James J. Jeffries into helplessness in Reno back in 1910. It also will be the first "mixed match" involving the title since Jess Willard defeated Johnson in Havana 22 years ago.

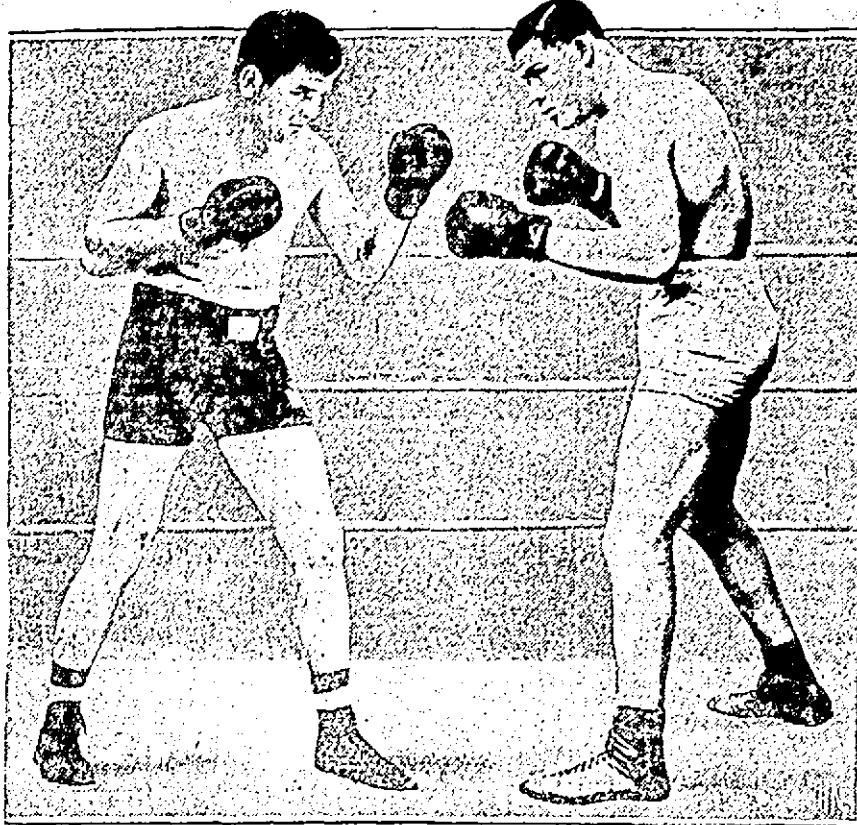

The fight will be held in the heart of Chicago's black belt with its 250,000 Negroes. To prevent any racial disturbances that may result in rioting, 1,000 policemen will be on guard, 400 within the arena and 600 outside the park walls. Reserves will be held in readiness.

Challenger Favored

For the first time in history, the heavyweight challenger goes into action favored to conquer the champion. Louis, on the strength of what he has done with his dynamic-laden fists, is held 5 to 2 over Braddock. Despite his defeat by Max Schmeling, who knocked him out in 12 rounds and his unfavorable showing against Bob Pastor, who spotted him 20 pounds, Louis holds the interest through the knockout power in his fists.

The fight is scheduled to go 35 rounds, or less. It may start any time between 8 and 10 p. m. (Marion time), depending on weather conditions, which forecasters may be fair with moderate tem-

IT'S JOE LOUIS VS. JAMES J. BRADDOCK TONIGHT

A bit of trick photography—but the above composite picture shows what Champion Jimmy Braddock and Challenger Joe Louis will look like as they enter the ring in White Sox stadium shortly before 10 o'clock tonight at Chicago. What they look like when they leave is another story—Jack Dempsey says postures. If rain threatens, however, the principals can be sent into the ring any time after 8 o'clock.

If rainy weather is encountered before the gates of the park are thrown open at 8 o'clock, the contest will be postponed until tomorrow night.

Big Money

The champion and challenger, both fighting on percentage, also will share in the $90,000 paid for the radio rights and $25,000 for motion picture contracts. Braddock will get 50 per cent of the total gate after state and federal taxes have been deducted and Louis 17½ per cent.

Both men were ready to weigh in at noon today at the Auditorium theater, and then hide out to await time to go to the battle ground. They must be there at 8 p. m. Braddock figures to scale 197, with Louis about 180.

Braddock, who since he defeated Max Baer for the championship in 1933, is strictly the "underdog." The lines of the experts are definitely drawn. They said either Louis would win by a quick knockout or Braddock would take down the decision, with a few rating him chances for a knockout victory.

The littleholder is conceded to be a better boxer than Louis. He has a better left hand for jabbing and is rated an all-around more superior ring general. He moves suavely around an opponent and while not given to running away from any one, the chances are that he'll keep out of the way of Louis' famous right, just as he circled away from Baer's Sunday punch.

Louis is the youngest challenger in heavyweight history. At the age of 23 he has skyrocketed to fame just as fast as did Jack Dempsey when the Manassa Mauler started

...mix mobile ticket booths will pass through the streets selling ducats...the ring is valued at $11,000 and was shipped to Chicago from New York for $8,000...the gate will be about $800,000. As soon as the contest ends, 12 policemen will make a rush for the ring and stay there until the crowd evaporates.

KENASTON PINS WOLFE;
WRESTLERS GET ROUGH

Sergeant Bob Kenaston, Silver City, Oregon's ring pride, came through with a (two-fall) victory over the western bad man, Leo Wolfe of Sherman, Tex., in one of the two featured bouts on last night's wrestling program at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium.

The Dodge, Neb., youth, Joe Hubbs, won over Hollywood, California's Ted Travis, in the second main go, when the latter was disqualified to end the third fall.

Kenaston had a narrow squeak in evading his own favorite display, a series of full-height body slams, when Wolfe forced his counter-attack along the same lines as the Sergeant's offensive. Kenaston let his opponent know early in the first fall that he wouldn't put up with a rough display, so long as he was able to do anything about it.

After absorbing plenty of rough punishment while Wolfe applied an arm-breaker on his right hand, Kenaston slugged his way out with a series of lefts to the jaw. The Sergeant exercised his near-paralyzed right arm by crashing it down over the back of his opponent's neck and finished Wolfe with a neck scissoring and catapult to take the initial fall in 11 minutes.

Plenty of action was packed in the eight-minute second fall, with the ex-marine leading most of the way.

Going Gets Rough

Early in the round Kenaston returned on the basis of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth."

The Texan's gouging and half-pulling, he broke out of Wolfe's head hold with a chest punt, landed another pair of them and then began administering his usually fatal alpine split and slam. But the easy Wolfe squirmed free of Kenaston's his famous knockout career. Dempsey was 24 years of age when he battered Willard to defeat in four rounds at Toledo in 1910.

LEGION SELLECTS 15 YOUTHS FOR MARION JUNIOR BALL TEAM

Last Minute Changes in Line-up Made Because of Age Limit.

Names of the 15 youths who will represent Marion in the junior baseball program of the American Legion were announced yesterday by Walter E. Hane, vice chairman of the Legion baseball committee. Last minute changes in the squad before the deadline at midnight Sunday were necessitated by the discovery that five members of the original team selected were over age, he said.

The 15 certified to Fred W. Simpson of Newark, sixth district junior baseball chairman for the Legion, are: Glen Winterton, Louis Wood, Donald Annen, Gordon Buckley, James F. Edington, Lester Lovell, Nick Cafazzo, Elden Dillinger, Gerald Straus, John Wyatt, Andrew Irvine, Robert Benson, Donald Franklin, Frank Cafazzo and John Edington Jr.

Selection of a full team had been made Saturday afternoon, but on investigation Legion officials found that five of the team were over the age limit set up in the rules governing the state and national Legion programs. Mr. Hane said, "Three new members were then selected Saturday and two others Sunday afternoon a few hours before the deadline.

Along with the names, birth certificates and fingerprints of each of the 15 were sent to Newark. Photographs of each player were also included and will be used in case of doubtful identity of any players in tournaments.

The age ruling eliminates any player who was 17 years old at midnight on March 30 of this year. The squad is working out daily now at the Uncleabie Avenue diamond in preparation for a schedule of games as follows: June 25, Kenton here; June 28, practice workout with the Marion team of the Ohio State league; July 2, Kenton there. John Edington is coach of the squad.

As a result of the mix-up in the final selections, many boys who were of proper age but had quit practice after the first selection of the 15 Saturday afternoon were unfairly eliminated from the squad, Mr. Hane pointed out.

ALL STAR GAME IS CALLED OFF BY RAIN

All Ohio State Teams Idle; Marion Prepares For Opener.

Wet grounds at Findlay's ball park yesterday caused the cancellation of the Ohio State league all-star baseball game. An all-star team composed of three players from each of the league teams except Findlay was to play the Findlay club in an exhibition game as a part of that city's celebration of the golden anniversary of gas and oil.

All of the Ohio State circuit teams were idle, bringing no change in the standings from the preceding day. As the Marion entry in the loop prepared to swing into action with its first home game this afternoon, the team stood in second place behind the league-leading Mansfield Red Sox, with Mansfield on the top rung of the league ladder, Marion runner-up, Tiffin, Fremont, Findlay and Portora, follow in that order.

Members of the Marion team were busy at Lincoln park yesterday assisting workmen in rushing to completion the work on the park and playing field. The team members last night were guests of Marion wrestling promoters at the weekly grappling program held at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium. The squad, together with Manager Chaple, Geygan and Owner R. R. Thompson, was introduced from the ring between bouts.

SNATCHES OF SPORT

CHICAGO, June 22—Joe Louis may beat Jimmy Braddock, but he'll have to do it early...records show Joe isn't a strong finisher...Siebe that's because he's seldom had to be...but in his past bouts which went the limit he was getting worse toward the end instead of better...Unless he can beat the Irishman in the first five rounds, this corner believes Braddock will go on to win, possibly just as decisively as Max Schmeling did...Anyway, Braddock is a darned good long shot.

Too bad you can't go to the Giant-Cub game this afternoon, then get back to Comiskey park before the big push...The fight has the town in such a frenzy the arrival of the Giants yesterday was scarcely noticed...If you're jammed to the rafters...You can't get into a night joint...Everybody and his brother is riding in the dough....

oldest son, Jay, has been promoted to school...On the way down from Grand Beach, a moth flew into the champion's car... "Ol, ol," shouted Manager-Chauffeur Joe Gould, narrowly missing a truck. "We're in...when moths come to see you they bring luck...a guy told me that last night....
